

SOCCER

OVERVIEW AND ORGANIZATION

Football (soccer) is the world's most popular game, played in more countries than any other sport. The origins of football are vague. The Greeks played a game which loosely resembles its modern counterpart, as did the Romans. By the 14th century it was so popular in England that King Edward II issued a proclamation on 13 April 1314, forbidding the game "forasmuch as there is great noise in the city caused by hustling over large balls from which many evils may arise which God forbid; we command and forbid, on behalf of the King, on pain of imprisonment, such game to be used in the city in the future." In 1349, Edward III objected to the game because it prevented the practice of archery, necessary for the military strength of the country. Banning the game had little effect, however, as similar edicts had to be given in 1389 (Richard II), 1401 (Henry IV), 1457 (James II), and right up to 1540 - Henry VIII. Gradually, despite the attempts to ban it, football spread throughout the world, becoming popular almost everywhere, with the United States being a notable exception. This six-week unit reviews the skills included in the sophomore year and increases students' consistency in applying them. Additional kicking skills of chipping and lofting will be developed. Heading will be encouraged and goalkeeping skills will be practiced. Added time will be spent developing and applying game strategies. Variations of position play will be included. Students will also officiate games during one of the two tournaments included in this unit.

Safety

1. Pass the ball below shoulder level
2. When heading the ball, contact should be made where the hairline meets
3. the forehead.
4. Students with glasses should have unbreakable lenses or a protective covering
5. No sliding tackles in class games

Care of Equipment

1. Place soccer balls in equipment bags after class.
2. Do not rip scrimmage vests. Place them in the mesh bag after class.
3. Collect cones after the last class of the day and place in tennis shed.

History

Attempts have been made to trace soccer, known worldwide as football, to Greek and Roman origins. However, there is little evidence to support this. Soccer is as much an English game as baseball is an American one. The first rules for soccer were developed in England in the 1800's. Soccer is played in 132 countries all over the world. It is the world's number one sport, played for both fun and fitness. It is primarily a running game, requiring that the ball be moved with the feet. Other body parts, except the hands and arms, may also be used to advance the ball

INDIVIDUAL DEFENSIVE OBJECTIVES:

1. Prevent receiver from getting the pass. Watch ball and potential receiver.
2. Intercept the pass to the player you are guarding.
3. Force the player controlling the ball to take a different route or get rid of the ball, causing a turnover.
4. Take the ball away from a person in possession of the ball by a good tackle.

TEAM OFFENSIVE OBJECTIVES: TO SCORE GOALS!!!

To do this, the defense must be forced out of their planned alignment into a weaker position. This is done by:

1. Ball control and possession
2. Penetration into the defense
3. Breadth of attack - use the width of the field
4. Depth of attack - halfbacks move up behind forwards quickly
5. Versatility in position play
6. Creativity in the attack

TECHNIQUES

Kicking

1. Determine the direction and distance you want the ball to travel.
2. Keep your eyes on the ball at all times.
3. Learn the techniques on a stationary or slow-moving ball.
4. Your body, especially the kicking leg, should be relaxed.
5. Use your arms to help maintain balance.
6. Practice kicking with both feet.
7. Long kicks usually travel distances more than fifteen yards.

Instep kick - used on both ground and bouncing balls

- used in scoring, free kick, and passing situations

1. Put the non-kicking foot four to six inches to the side of the ball.
2. Flex the knee of the kicking foot until it blocks your view of the ball.
3. Straighten the knee as it moves over the ball and swing the leg from the hip.
4. Keep the toe pointed down; the shoelaces should contact the ball slightly below its midpoint.
5. To keep the ball low, lean forward from the waist as you make contact.
6. To loft the ball, place the non-kicking foot 6 to 8 inches to the side of and slightly behind the ball. Lean back as you make contact.
7. Follow through by continuing the upward swing of your leg.

Outside of foot kick - same as instep kick except the toe is turned inward. This lets you kick a fast, low curved ball with side spin. It is used to shoot around an opponent. It is effective as a corner kick.

Inside of the foot kicks - push pass and lob are great kicks to use for short passes and goal shots. They are not deceptive kicks.

1. Swing the kicking leg forward from the hip with the knee slightly flexed and the toe pointed down and out.
2. Straighten the leg as the inside of the foot contacts the ball.
3. For the push pass, push the ball with the inside of the foot without bouncing it.
4. For the lob, place the inside of the foot slightly under the ball, lift your foot as you kick, and lean backward.

Volleying - This is executed while the ball is in the air. It will yield a high lofted ball.

1. Swing the kicking leg forward from the hip. Keep the knee flexed and toe point down.
2. Contact the ball slightly below its midpoint with the instep or shoelace.
3. Follow through by continuing the upward swing of the leg.
4. Kick the ball while it is in the air to loft; kick the ball near the ground to keep it low.

Half-volley - This is done just after the ball strikes the ground. It will produce a low ball.

TRAPPING

This is the process of bring the ball under control. It is more than just stopping the ball; a trap may bring a ball to the ground, change its direction, or slow it down. A trap is successful when you intercept the ball and are ready to dribble, pass, or kick it.

1. Keep your eyes on the ball.
2. Learn the techniques on slow moving balls
3. Maintain a relaxed body through the skill performance.

Sole of the foot trap - used to stop a rolling or bouncing ball.

1. Extend the trapping leg forward with the foot 4 to 5 inches away from the ground and at a 45 degree angle to it.
2. Allow the ball to roll into the trap formed by your foot and the ground.

PASSING

Be sure you can pass the ball without it being intercepted. Pass to a teammate who is not guarded, in such a way that he can gain control. The receiver must work to be in position to receive the ball.

1. Use a form of the instep kick for long passes.
2. Use the inside of the foot, the outside of the foot, or the head for short passes.
3. Time your pass with the speed of the receiver.

4. Devote all of your attention to your passing.
5. Look at your receiver before kicking.
6. Look at the ball.
7. Lead the receiver
8. Try to deceive your opponent with feinting movements.

DRIBBLING

This is a means of advancing the ball by a series of short taps with the feet. It is the second choice behind passing. Its basic purpose is to keep possession of the ball.

1. Most effective:

- a. When not guarded closely
- b. When no one is open to pass to
- c. When you are trying to set up a play
- d. When you are maneuvering for position

2. Techniques:

- a. Keep the ball near your feet.
- b. Push or tap the ball.
- c. Work for ball control by
 - 1) Raise foot 3 to 4 inches off the ground
 - 2) Tap the ball straight ahead with inside of foot
 - 3) Keep body forward; head is over ball.
 - 4) Step forward shifting weight to dribbling foot, repeating with other foot.

THROW-IN

This is used when the ball goes out of bounds over the touchline.

1. Part of each foot must be touching ground when the ball is released.
2. Both hands must be used for this overhead throw.
3. It initiates offensive play.
4. Lead the receiver.

HEADING

This is a means of controlling the ball by physically using the head. It can be used to pass, score or just control the ball.

1. Jump up to meet the ball; use arms for balance.
2. Middle of the ball should contact the forehead at the hairline.
3. Tighten neck muscles and throw the head at the ball.
