Organizational Tips for 2nd Quarter

Now is a good time to re-evaluate how students use their time during each school day. It is expected that students be ready to engage in their educational activities, whether it's live instruction via Zoom, or asynchronous instructional practices every day from 8:30 to 2:25. Students have the opportunity to meet with their teacher's everyday! They can meet during their classes' asynchronous time, as well as during the teacher's office hours posted on their teacher's Canvas page. We want all students to be successful during this unique educational model, and as we understand students are struggling, we also know that students have opportunities to receive help from their teachers, but aren't taking the opportunity to receive this help. The attached powerpoint presentation was shared with your student during their 3rd period class sometime over the past 2 weeks to help them understand better how to manage their time, set academic goals for themselves and be successful. We would appreciate it if you also took this opportunity to check in with your student to see what changes can be made to help them be more successful this quarter. There still is time for students to improve their grade!
